

Tags 2.0 Released for Mac OS X - File Organization and Tagging Tool

Published on 02/03/10

Gravity Applications today announced Tags 2.0 for Mac OS X. Tags allows users to tag all their files on their Mac, such as files and folders in the finder, emails in Mail, photos in iPhoto, bookmarks in Safari, etc., directly from within the application. It allows the user to associate files of different types to one another with ease and without creating duplicates. Users can apply many different tags to a single file, as well as apply the same tag to multiple files.

Boston, Massachusetts - Gravity Applications today is pleased to announce the release of Tags version 2 for Mac OS X. Tags allows users to tag all their files on their Mac, such as files and folders in the finder, emails in Mail, photos in iPhoto, bookmarks in Safari, etc., directly from within the application. It allows the user to associate files of different types to one another with ease and without creating duplicates. Users can apply many different tags to a single file, as well as apply the same tag to multiple files. This allows users to associate files to one another in a way far superior to a rigid file / folder structure.

With Tags, users can quickly find files irrespective of file type or where they were saved. Tags can be invoked with a simple keystroke in most applications so that users can Tag files and search for Tags, wherever they are.

Feature Highlights:

- * Tag files directly in all supported applications
- * Enhanced Spotlight Search Interface
- * Browse tagged items with Quick Look previews

Tags 2 works natively with all applications that properly support Applescript. The following are popular apps that are fully supported:

- * Finder
- * Mail
- * Browsers: Safari, FireFox, Camino
- * Adobe Photoshop, InDesign, Illustrator
- * Microsoft Office (Word, Excel)
