

Emily's Girl Talk for iPhone featured as New and Noteworthy by Apple

Published on 03/04/10

Broken Thumbs Apps, a family-owned and operated iPhone app developer, has announced that Apple has featured Emily's Girl Talk, a collection of four charming story-telling games for the iPhone, iPod touch and iPad. Emily's Girl Talk features the classic games M.A.S.H., Lemon and more, allowing fans to create hilarious stories to share with friends, discover their fortunes and more. It also features a beautiful journal to keep stories and a sticker album to display the cute stickers earned.

Cupertino, California - Broken Thumbs Apps has announced that Emily's Girl Talk, a collection of four unique charming story-telling games, has been featured by Apple as "New and Noteworthy" in the US App Store. Emily's Girl Talk features the classic M.A.S.H. (Mansion, Apartment, Shack, House) and the hilariously unpredictable Lemon, as well as other fortune-telling games for the iPhone, iPod touch and iPad.

Emily's Girl Talk also includes an in-app journal that automatically records entries for reading and sharing later as well as a sticker album that displays the cute stickers earned while playing the game. In addition, Emily's Girl Talk incorporates beautiful artwork and memorable characters, delightful background music and sounds, and numerous other special features that enhance the imaginative world of Emily's Girl Talk. Based on popular feedback, Broken Thumbs Apps is also working on a version 1.1 update to add a diary for the player to write in, along with a lock to keep the entries private, as well as adding more stickers to be earned.

This is the first time that one of the apps by Broken Thumbs Apps is being featured by Apple in the App Store and comes over 150 days after Broken Thumbs Apps released its first game, Snaked, into the App Store. As of the time of this publication, Emily's Girl Talk had reached as high as Top 30 among all Paid Games in the US App Store and nearly Top 60 among all Paid Apps in the US App Store, making it the most successful title to date from Broken Thumbs Apps.

"It was very exciting and gratifying to discover that Emily's Girl Talk had been featured in 'New and Noteworthy' by Apple," said Emily Maples, co-founder and head of product development of Broken Thumbs Apps. "Most importantly, Broken Thumbs Apps is very happy about all of the positive feedback and support it has received from fans and looks forward to Emily's Girl Talk being discovered and enjoyed by many more people."
