Published on 03/24/10

Pavtube Studio has released Pavtube DVD Ripper for Mac 2.6, an update to their strong performer in backuping, ripping and converting DVDs on any Mac operation systems. Version 2.6 focuses on optimizing audio and video synchronization technology. Pavtube Studio independently developed the most advanced audio and video sync technology in this area to guarantee putting an end to the problem audio and video out of sync.

Mt Vernon, New York - Pavtube Studio, an excellent and professional software developer, launched the new version 2.6 for Pavtube DVD Ripper for Mac which is a strong performer in backuping, ripping and converting DVDs on any Mac operation systems. This version focuses on optimizing audio and video synchronization technology. Pavtube Studio independently developed the most advanced audio and video sync technology in this area to guarantee putting an end to the problem audio and video out of sync. Besides, Pavtube still adopted the newest decryption technology which is able to remove the latest copyright and region limitation protection so that users can rip any commercial DVDs bought or rented from anywhere freely.

The newly-designed profile list which is displayed in sub-menu is more friendly, intuitive and flexible with device names in the left and corresponding video formats in the right. Users are still allowed to customize the profile they desire through saving the frequently-used profiles and removing the rarely-used.

Pavtube improved the stability of this software running on Mac through fixing bugs for crashes that occurred when this app worked with Intel Core I5/I7. To meet a variety of users' demands, edit functions are also enhanced including reinforced merging feature, more easier-to-use watermark function, etc. In addition, a smart feature that is automatic shutdown is added in this new version.

Pricing and Availability:

Pavtube DVD Ripper for Mac is only for $35 (USD). Besides, all the update is for free and warm after-sale service is available at anytime.
