New York, NY - Announcing that Adventure Hong Kong Company Limited, the developers of Solitaire Legend, has released a new game for iPhone, iPod touch and iPad users who enjoy playing solitaire. The application is based on the world's most popular version of the classic card game and offers features that players will find addictive. Users can post their scores to FaceBook, save unfinished games and take advantage of the many other functions. They can even use their own photos as background themes.

Nearly everyone knows how to play solitaire; it's the world's most popular game, a classic. Klondike solitaire is the regular version we all know and it's a much loved pastime that's been taught through generations of eager game enthusiasts. All it takes to play the old fashioned way is a deck of cards. The modern way to play solitaire only requires a download of Solitaire Legend.

Gameplay in Solitaire Legend is a matter of using the touch screen technology to drag and drop cards where they belong. When all of the cards are in four stacks, in their proper order according to suit, the player wins the game. The game gives users the option of a one or three card draw to play each game. If all the cards on the screen are laying in the proper order for stacking, a double tap will take care of it automatically, finish the game and offer hearty congratulations.

Users can choose from a supply of background themes or use their own photos to dress up the screen and personalize the look of the game. The interface notes user statistics, such as the number of games played, scores and global ranking. Additionally, the app accommodates portrait or landscape mode and allows users to post their scores to FaceBook to incite some healthy competition. Players will be happy to note that Solitaire Legend comes equipped with unlimited redraws and undo's. If a user finds that they've made a mistake, they can change their plays to correct moves.
