WhoPaste version 4.6 allows Mac users to select some text and then use a control click or hot key to create a Task in iCal, Daylite, or Entourage. WhoPaste opens the Daylite or Entourage Task window allowing users to complete the specification. For iCal, WhoPaste provides a custom heads up display window directly beneath the mouse click. WhoPaste provides a similar mechanism for creating contacts in Apple's Address Book, Google's Contacts, Marketcircle's Daylite, and Microsoft's Entourage.

Austin, Texas - WhoPaste version 4.6 allows Mac users to select some text and then use a control click or hot key to create a Task in iCal, Daylite, or Entourage. WhoPaste opens the Daylite or Entourage Task window allowing the user to complete the specification. For iCal, WhoPaste provides a custom heads up display window directly beneath the mouse click. WhoPaste provides a similar mechanism for creating contacts in Apple's Address Book, Google's Contacts, Marketcircle's Daylite, and Microsoft's Entourage.

WhoPaste's new task functionality provides a user default which controls whether there is a due date and if so how many days in the future. WhoPaste also provides a 'skip Saturday' and a 'skip Sunday' option. iCal users can specify a default calendar for new To Dos, while Daylite and Entourage users can specify a default Category and Project.

WhoPaste 4.6 also introduces 4 new cost effective license options. Both the new 'Add One' and 'Up to 5' license options are available to 1, 2, 3, or 4 user licenses. The new 'Up to 10' option is available for 5 user licenses and the new 'Up to 25' option is available for 10 user licenses.

By incorporating the latest tools from Google, WhoPaste 4.6 now provides structured names and addresses, as well as url information that will provide live links from within Google Contacts.

Two new trigger functions allows WhoPaste 4.6 to be easily adapted to processing contact data from known or often used sources. With just a few clicks, WhoPaste can adapt to simply ignore certain text, ignore any line containing certain text, or automatically add any line containing text to the Notes. WhoPaste has an extensive set of such options for general usage and as well over 30 options for customizing Daylite integration.

WhoPaste's features include: citation capture for information sourcing, automatic group assignment for Address Book, Google, and Entourage, post-process script execution, AppleScript-ability, pre-built Automator actions, automatic SMS address augmentation, back-office system integration options, archiving, language customization for niche markets, duplicate contact detection, and more.
