Shenzhen, China - Leawo Software, the professional video converter developer for Windows and Mac OS, today released Leawo Mac Video Converter V1.3.2.3, featuring multiple performance upgrades. This new all-in-one Mac Video Converter adds new output profiles to help users convert video to formats compatible for iDVD and iMovie input. Users are recommended to upgrade to this version for better experience.

What is new in Leawo Mac Video Converter V1.3.2.3?

- * New output profile for iDVD - this upgrade version provides new profile for iDVD input to facilitate users to convert all kinds of audio and video files to iDVD compatible format, therefore burn them to DVD with iDVD to be played on a commercial DVD player.
- * New output profile for iMovie - this new Leawo Mac Video Converter has also been upgraded to provide support for another particular profile: iMovie, which allows the Mac users to edit their own home movies with iMovie easily.
- * Fixed for profile customization failure - occasional inaccuracies were reported upon the profile customization function previously due to incompatible coding. Now the problem has been fixed in this upgrade version, making sure that the profiles can be saved accurately.
- * Fixed for merge progress display error - some merge conversions could fail in displaying progress and this problem has been solved by upgrading the conversion algorithm in this upgrade version, letting the users be well aware of the merge progress during conversion and know clearly which conversions fall through if there are any.
- * Fixed for some small bugs-- some usage inconvenience due to some previous small bugs has been solved by optimizing the program and upgrading user experience in this version.
