Torrance, CA - February 22, 2008 - GizMac Accessories, designer and manufacturer of innovative products for the Apple iPod and iPhone, begin shipment of their Aluminate iPod case for the 3rd generation iPod Nano.

Aluminate is a hybrid Nano case made from aluminum and polycarbonate. The front of the Aluminate is thin, colorful aluminum and the back of the case is made of tough, clear polycarbonate. The combination of the aluminum and polycarbonate provide superior iPod protection for the Nano.

Screen and click wheel protection for the iPod Nano are built into the Aluminate case. The Aluminate screen protector is part of the aluminum front cover and provides full screen protection. The click wheel protector is also part of the Aluminate's metal front cover and it protects while allowing the click wheel controls to function.

Attachments for the Aluminate iPod case include a quick change lanyard and carabiner clip. The Aluminate lanyard is a thin and light, yet strong and secure way to carry your Nano. The carabiner clip provides an additional way to wear or carry the Aluminate Nano case.

"The Aluminate is a good looking and protective iPod case to begin with," explained Ken Vitto, Marketing Director for GizMac Accessories, "Then we added extra functionality and value as GizMac always does with products we sell."

GizMac has made choosing the color of Aluminate Nano case a little easier by including two different colors of cases in every package. The additional iPod case can be used to match your changes in style or can be given to someone else. GizMac will even customize your order with two of the same color Aluminate cases when purchasing from their web site directly.

The Aluminate iPod Nano cases are available in metallic shades of black, silver, blue, pink and green. Retail price for the Aluminate is $29.99 U.S. and can be purchased through authorized GizMac resellers or from the GizMac web site.
