Centreville, Virginia - Deep Prose Software announced today the immediate availability of Booxter 2.0.7 for Mac OS X. With Booxter users can create multiple libraries and smart lists to organize books, music, movies and comic books the way they want. Booxter supports both handheld and wireless barcode scanners and iSight video cameras to quickly add large numbers of items to a collection. It is easy to use, fun, and has many very powerful features.

Version 2.0.7 adds a new HTML export feature for iPod and iPhone touch users so that they can view their libraries on the go with an internet connection. Support for newer, more powerful ROV wireless scanners has been added. Improvements to online searching, sorting, and keyboard navigation have also been made.

The Deep Prose web store sells USB and Bluetooth barcode scanners which complement Booxter and provide a complete integrated solution for collectors.

Booxter requires Mac OS 10.4 or Mac OS 10.5. The free version has a limit of 30 items for each library. The full version costs $49.99 USD.
