

Communicate: Information Technology Community Event

Published on 03/17/08

Many organizations face common issues. Communicate is an open forum where attendees are able to share experiences with services, products and problem solving strategies. Communicate meetings are held approximately every two months and are a friendly environment for attendees to ask questions and provide answers. Topics discussed are community driven. Further details and registration are available from the Lucid Information Systems website.

Christchurch, New Zealand - Many organizations face common issues. Communicate is an open forum where attendees are able to share experiences with services, products and problem solving strategies. Communicate meetings are held approximately every two months and are a friendly environment for attendees to ask questions and provide answers.

Communicate attendees have an opportunity to find out how successful a certain approach to a problem was by directly asking someone with direct experience.

Now in into the second year of meetings, Lucid Information Systems has a variety of people attending. Some attendees may approach problems from similar a direction. While others may have a completely different way of thinking about the problem and solution, this communication between people and domains is what the meetings are all about.

Lucid Information Systems are always keen to have more attendees who critically evaluate approaches, who formulate and express opinions and constructive suggestions.

If you are looking for a solution to a problem then it is likely that someone else has the same problem or maybe even a solution. Should you wish to allocate a presentation slot we ask that you please mention this in the comments when you register. We look forward to seeing you at the next Communicate meeting.
