MobileApp Systems LLC today announces iLuaBox 1.1.1, an update to their Lua scripting environment running on all Apple iOS 4.2 compatible devices. Lua is a powerful, fast, lightweight, embeddable scripting language. It has been used in many industrial applications, with an emphasis on embedded systems and games. Version 1.1.1 improvements include command history, external keyboard support, and new library functions.

Orchard Park, New York - MobileApp Systems LLC, a developer of mobile software and hardware solutions for demanding applications, today is proud to announce the immediate availability of iLuaBox version 1.1.1, a Lua scripting environment running on all Apple iOS 4.2 compatible devices.

Lua is a powerful, fast, lightweight, embeddable scripting language. It has been used in many industrial applications, with an emphasis on embedded systems and games. iLuaBox is a full- featured implementation of the Lua Programming Language that's been optimized for iOS 4.2 and all of Apple's iOS 4.2 compatible devices.

"iLuaBox version 1.1.1 is a refinement release driven by extensive user feedback." says Tom Skwara, company President. "I think our customers will appreciate the improvements made to fit-and-finish while we work on major features such as In-App purchases of toolboxes that expand iLuaBox depth and functionality."

Recent improvements include command history, external keyboard support, and new library functions. iLuaBox features side-by-side text views that provide a simple yet powerful text user interface. Scripts can be edited and tested right on the iOS device. iLuaBox includes a solid reference manual and examples to get started quickly.
