

News Wall 2.0: News coming to the User

Published on 12/09/10

Independent developer Daniel Wetzel today released News Wall 2.0 for iPad, iPhone and iPod touch devices. Keeping track of news and reports is getting more and more difficult. To filter news sites, blogs and social media services takes a lot of time. This never-ending travel now has come to an end with News Wall 2.0. The RSS feed reader for iPhone, iPod touch and iPad subscribes to sources easily and creates a "virtual wall of news" to go.

Berlin, Germany - Independent developer Daniel Wetzel today is pleased to announce the release of News Wall 2.0 for iPad, iPhone and iPod touch devices. The update includes an optimized user interface combining news texts and images to a new reading experience. Consuming hundreds of articles and posts a day has never been easier. The download speed of new content has been improved dramatically saving even more time.

The built-in feed search lets the user find feeds by keywords without typing URLs or web addresses. Sharing of news has been improved. Important headlines and texts can be send to Twitter, Instapaper, Readitlater or by mail with a single tap. The ability to combine hundreds of news sources, the support of multitasking for iOS 4 devices and the easy-to-use user interface make News Wall to a perfect companion.
