

iPresentee Releases Keynote 3D Stuff

Published on 05/02/08

iPresentee, the developer of add-ons for Apple's iWork and iLife applications, has released Keynote 3D Stuff, a package of 3D images for Apple Keynote, iWeb and Pages. iPresentee is offering 70 different high quality, detailed, easy to use and attractive 3D objects for developing a great-looking presentation, website or document.

Vilnius, Lithuania - From futuristic apple to pencil, from metal to glass objects, and a lot more. iPresentee Keynote 3D Stuff objects will enhance Apple Keynote, iWeb or Pages. Each 3D image is optimized for 1024x768 pixels in size presentations and for Pages documents or iWeb templates of any size.

Within Apple's Keynote, iWeb and Pages, these objects can be changed in size, rotated, increased or decreased in opacity, fitted with shadows or even overlapped with one another to create extra effects. The background of all Keynote 3D Stuff objects is transparent and can be used on any colored background.

Using Keynote 3D Stuff is a snap download, open the package, and put 3D objects on Keynote presentations, iWeb templates or Pages documents as you would any other pictures.

Minimum Requirements:

- * Mac OS X Version 10.4 Tiger or higher
- * Any version of Apple Keynote, iWeb or Pages.
- * G4 Processor, 1GHz or faster
- * 150 MB Hard Drive space

Pricing and Availability:

Keynote 3D Stuff is priced at $20 USD. Samples and more information about Keynote 3D Stuff are available immediately at the iPresentee website.
