Clearwater, FL - Mach Software Design today announced a new version of its flagship product, Clipboard Evolved. Clipboard Evolved makes it fun and easy to organize your data in a user-friendly clipboard. How many times have you copied something only to realize you need it again a few minutes later?

Unlike most other clipboard managers, which either gives you the choice of a window or a menu, Clipboard Evolved offers both a beautiful clipboard window plus a menu for easy access to copy items. Welcome to Clipboard Evolved. Designed to fit neatly and unobtrusively in Mac OS X, it's the perfect multiple clipboard for Mac OS X.

Quick access in the menu bar makes the Clipboard fast to open and get rid of just as quickly. Left-click on the clipboard in the menubar to bring up the Clipboard window. Click on it again to close it. Right-click on the menu bar icon to bring up a menu. Select the item you want, and it is automatically copied. If you have a piece of data you want to copy, just drag it to the clipboard icon in the menubar. The clipboard pops up and you can drag it into which ever clip you want. And with the Clipboard's automatic save feature, you'll never have to worry about losing clipboard data again.

Clipboard Evolved offers three different clipboard sizes to choose from: small, medium, or large. With the large setting, the clipboard has over 30 containers for data - plenty of room for the serious professional. Clipboard Evolved also has five different animation options to choose from: Ripple, Copy Machine, Star Burst, Irregular Holes, and Disintegrate. The transition animations use Core Image for photorealistic transitions every time. The clipboard window itself, much like Leopard's menubar, is translucent and blurs the background for a very cool distortion effect. The color and translucency of Clipboard Evolved is customizable as well.
