Published on 10/27/11

Toronto based RAGE Software today announces SEIntelligence, the first native, professional Search Engine Optimization software for Mac OS X. SEIntelligence tracks a website's top competitors with the current high ranking websites in all major search engines. It then uses statistical analysis to compare a user's website with their competition, outlining exactly what aspects of a website need to be optimized in order to achieve higher search engine rankings.

Toronto, Ontario - RAGE Software is pleased to announce today the immediate availability of SEIntelligence, the first native, professional Search Engine Optimization (SEO) software for Mac OS X. SEIntelligence tracks a website's top competitors with the current high ranking websites in all major search engines. It then uses statistical analysis to compare a user's website with their competition, outlining exactly what aspects of a website need to be optimized in order to achieve higher search engine rankings.

SEIntelligence also provides "Off Page Optimizations" reports, which includes analyzing incoming links from third party websites and social media marketing strategies. SEIntelligence can discover the link strategies used by a website's competitors. With this information, a website owner can easily build their link popularity, a metric used by all search engines when ranking websites.

SEIntelligence is also the first professional SEO software that was built for popular Mac web building applications including; iWeb, RapidWeaver, Sandvox, Dreamweaver and more. In addition, SEIntelligence can be used with any other website including those built with content management systems (CMS) like WordPress, Joomla and Drupal.

SEIntelligence adds to RAGE Software's current line up of web development and SEO software for Mac OS X and sells for $199.95 USD. There are no subscription or monthly fees.
