

Announcing the Creation of JoeSoft, Software for the average Joe

Published on 05/04/07

Pleasanton, CA - May 4, 2007 - Prosoft Engineering, Inc., an award-winning software development company founded in 1985, today announced a new division, JoeSoft - software for the average Joe! JoeSoft's launch will coincide with the release of Klix - digital picture recovery software.

"JoeSoft is dedicated to bringing great software to the masses at reasonable prices, states Greg Brewer, CEO of JoeSoft." "When you buy a JoeSoft product you can be assured of great, award-winning software from a customer-service oriented company. We take pride in working closely with our customers to provide them with the best service and support possible."

JoeSoft... Software for the "Average Joe"

JoeSoft was founded with the goal of producing award-winning products that everyday people could use. JoeSoft is dedicated to developing great software at reasonable prices. Free technical support based in California, low cost software replacement policies and generous free upgrade periods are only some of the ways that JoeSoft sets itself apart from the other software companies.

Klix - digital picture recovery

Klix recovers digital pictures after reformat, deletion or card corruption. Klix recovers all common image formats, from any USB, FireWire, IEEE 1394 or iLINK® camera. This award-winning software works when other software fails. Klix is compatible for Mac and Windows platforms.

Availability

Klix is available to purchase online at www.JoeSoft.com for $49.95 and at authorized partners.
