Utah based Fiery Ferret is pleased to announce Rebound 1.0, a new entertainment application for the iPhone and iPod Touch. In Rebound, users can pick from four different toys and toss them around in a playful environment. The level of colorful detail in Rebound is sure to make one smile. From the cardboard grass to the clouds on hooks, Rebound truly is a joy to play with.

Orem, Utah - Utah based Fiery Ferret is pleased to announce Rebound 1.0, a new entertainment application for the iPhone and iPod Touch. A surprisingly simple concept combined with playful graphics, Rebound offers a fun distraction to fill spare moments. In Rebound, users can choose from one of four unique toys; a bouncy ball, a bright balloon, a spiky mace, or an annoyed cat. With the swipe of a finger, these toys are sent ricocheting across the screen.

The level of colorful detail in Rebound is sure to make one smile. From the cardboard grass to the clouds on hooks (which swing with gravity), Rebound truly is a joy to play with.

Rebound is also an experiment in open development practices. All aspects of its development, from conception, design, and advertising to the final sales statistics are freely published on the Fiery Ferret blog. For those interested in iPhone development, a behind-the-scenes perspective can help them get started on their next project.
