Mountain View, California - Announcing that Seacloud Software, the developers of Baby Connect, has released the latest update of their acclaimed product for iPhone, iPod touch and iPad users. Thanks to a consistently rising increase in the number of parents and child care centers using the app to keep a pulse on a child's health and development, Baby Connect is celebrating the milestone of more than one million events saved weekly to the Baby Connect website. The application offers a ton of easy to use features that help parents and caregivers to track, compare, chart and share their baby's data.

Seacloud Software is proud to announce that their Baby Connect application has crossed the one million weekly saved events mark. The application offers a ton of practical, easy-to-use features that allows parents, day care centers, nannies, babysitters, or any other caregivers in a child's life, to track, chart, compare and share important growth, health and development data for a child.

An event is anything entered into the app. A child's parents and caregivers are all synced, in real-time, so when one person enters information, the others know instantly. That may be something as simple as a diaper change, or as exciting as baby's first steps.

"More and more parents and child care centers are using Baby Connect," said Xavier Launay, owner of Seacloud Software. "All of the data entered into the application is backed up online, so we know the number of events that have gone through, how many times the app has been used by moms, dads, nannies and so forth. That number is now more than one million events every week."

All those events came from the several thousand current Baby Connect users. While all of the data entered into the app is backed up online for safekeeping, each user's data is securely password protected for privacy. The comprehensive features and functions in Baby Connect have been touted by the New York Times, WorkingMother, Babble and others. It has made the top lists on several sites and was deemed an 'Essential App for Busy Parents' by Apple.
