Dover, Delaware - MegaCubic Entertainment, a mobile game development company, plans to release its new game, Puggy the Monster - the Fun Bite, on the App Store soon. Designed to attract both adults and kids, the game features a mysterious little monster named Puggy with magic power to make things come alive. In the game, players can put their reacting skills to test in a fun way. There are also various tools for players to interact with the little monster.

This kids-friendly game asks players to place their fingers in Puggy's wide-opened mouth. Players should react fast enough to pull off their fingers before Puggy bites unexpectedly. Another highlight of the game is the fun Interactions between the monster and the players. "Puggy's vivid reactions to different interacting tools will surely bring players smile," said Chris Su, Product Design Director of MegaCubic. He continued, "We're also proud of the fantastic graphics, animation, and sound effects that enrich players' interactions with the creature in their hands."

"Puggy the Monster - the Fun Bite is especially ideal for children because of the simple gameplay and the mischievous character. Kids could have their reacting skills trained in an interesting way or merely have great fun," remarked Kenny Su, Founder and CEO of MegaCubic. "We hope the game stands as a high-quality choice for parents when selecting games for their children. We're also excited to continuously bring entertaining games to both kids and adults."
