

Wide Email Update Adds Typing Shortcuts

Published on 12/12/08

LizzardWerks has announced an update to Wide Email, a landscape email program for the iPhone. Now users can write emails much faster using Wide Email's new feature: "Typing Shortcuts" for frequently used phrases. Quickly typing "cu" could automatically insert "see you later", or a whole sentence or paragraph. Users can add, edit, and delete an unlimited number of custom shortcuts. Wide Email is the only iPhone landscape email program with this time-saving feature.

Washington, DC - LizzardWerks has announced an update to Wide Email, a landscape email program for the iPhone. Write emails on the iPhone much faster by tapping just a few letters to automatically insert common phrases, sentences, or even whole paragraphs. The latest update to Wide Email, a landscape email program for the iPhone, adds this time-saving feature, called "Typing Shortcuts."

For example, typing "adr" could automatically insert a user's entire 3-line mailing address. Or typing "js" could insert "John M. Smith Jr., MD, Ph.D." Users can add, edit, and delete an unlimited number of custom typing shortcuts.

Wide Email also lets iPhone users type emails faster and more accurately by using the wider, landscape-mode keyboard, which is not available in the iPhone's built-in email program. The horizontal keyboard has wider keys that are easier to see and to hit, even for people with big thumbs. Combined with the wider keyboard, typing shortcuts makes writing emails on the iPhone much faster and more enjoyable.

Wide Email is the only landscape email app for the iPhone that has this feature. This new feature adds to the other features in Wide Email, including unlimited saved drafts, full international character support, and auto-saving of drafts and sent drafts.
