

MacService Announces SSD Drive Upgrades for the MacBook & MacBook Pro

Published on 03/02/09

MacService has announced new Solid State Drive upgrades for the MacBook and MacBook Pro.

You can now upgrade your MacBook to a super-fast 120GB or 250GB SSD. These drives boot faster, run quieter and improve application performance. All prices include free roundtrip shipping, installation, data transfer and a laptop shipping container. These drives include a mini-usb port for future external connectivity and come with a lifetime warranty.

Santa Clara, California - MacService has announced SSD upgrades for the MacBook and MacBook Pro. You can now upgrade the hard drive on your MacBook to a new 120GB or 250GB

Solid State Drive (SSD) starting at $499. Unlike traditional hard drives, SSD drives have no moving parts. They provide faster boot times, quieter operation and increased app performance. These drives come with a mini-usb port that makes future external connectivity easy.

* 120GB SSD Upgrade - $499

* 250GB SSD Upgrade - $899

All prices include free roundtrip shipping, installation, data transfer and a laptop shipping container. Your old drive is returned to you to be used as a backup or secondary drive. These SSD drives are brand new and come with a lifetime warranty.

How the service works:

MacService sends a custom laptop shipping container to you. Once it arrives, simply pack your laptop and send it back using the prepaid UPS shipping label. Once your laptop is back at MacService, a certified technician installs the new SSD drive and transfers your data. A Service Advisor will keep you informed every step of the way. After the service is complete, your laptop is cleaned, tested and sent back to you along with your old drive. All services are completed within 24 hours of arrival.
