From futuristic apple to pencil, from metal to glass objects, and a lot more.

Vilnius, Lithuania - iPresentee, the developer of add-ons for Apple's iWork and iLife applications, releases Keynote 3D Stuff 2.0, a package of 3D images to be used with Apple's Keynote, iWeb and Pages. Keynote 3D Stuff package includes 115 different high quality, detailed, easy to use and attractive 3D objects for developing a great-looking presentation, website or document. From futuristic apple to pencil, from metal to glass objects, and a lot more.

The package combines 70 images included in version 1.0 with 45 new ones created specifically for this release. Keynote 3D Stuff objects will enhance Apple Keynote, iWeb or Pages. Each 3D image is optimized for 1024x768 pixels in size presentations and for Pages documents or iWeb templates of any size. The background of all Keynote 3D Stuff objects is transparent and can be used on any colored background.

Within Apple's Keynote, iWeb and Pages, these objects can be changed in size, rotated, increased or decreased in opacity, fitted with shadows or even overlapped with one another to create extra effects. Using Keynote 3D Stuff is a snap download, open the package, and put 3D objects to Keynote presentations, iWeb templates or Pages documents as you would any other pictures.
