WaterField Designs, a leading manufacturer of custom-fitted computer cases and bags, introduces a new protective laptop SleeveCase size 25-18 for the Dell Adamo. This rugged and stylish SleeveCase adds itself to WaterField's 50+ custom laptop sleeves for the Apple and PC market.

San Francisco, CA- WaterField Designs, a leading manufacturer of custom-fitted computer cases and bags, introduces a new protective laptop SleeveCase size 25-18 for the Dell Adamo. This SleeveCase adds itself to WaterField's 50+ custom laptop sleeves for the Apple and PC market.

"To protect your investment, it is important to cushion your slim Dell Adamo while in transit," explained owner, Gary Waterfield. "You'll want your case to fit snugly for optimal protection - the WaterField Designs case is an exact fit for the new Dell Adamo dimensions, and it's very protective. You can add a strap and a Piggyback and transform the SleeveCase into a minimalist laptop bag."

The SleeveCase secures and protects the Dell Adamo without zippers, allowing quick access to the laptop. It combines a nearly indestructible ballistic nylon outer shell with a high-grade, 6mm neoprene interior that absorbs shock as it cradles the computer. A loop at one end lets users hold the SleeveCase while easily removing the device. Travelers passing through airport security can leave the Adamo protected in the TSA friendly sleeve while it makes its way through the x-ray apparatus, thereby minimizing loss or damage at security checkpoints.

When inserted into WaterField's VertiGo, Cargo or Cozmo bags, the SleeveCase protects the Adamo from other bag contents and can remain inside the bag when the computer is removed. Alternatively, one can opt to add a strap to the sleeve and use it as stand-alone case.
