South San Francisco, USA / Munich, Germany - If the new iPod shuffle's announcements consist of only "track 01" and "unknown album", SongGenie can quickly help determine the missing track information by using acoustic fingerprints. iPhones and iPods with screens will benefit from CoverScout's album cover search by displaying the correct cover in the Cover Flow view. equinux has updated CoverScout and SongGenie and has integrated them more closely together giving users a greater ability to improve their music libraries.

SongGenie 1.1 - apply more information automatically

SongGenie 1.1 delivers for each identified song all available music albums as a selection. It can now apply all the details of already identified tracks in one go - automatically if desired. If the artwork for a track is missing, SongGenie starts searching in CoverScout with just one mouseclick.

CoverScout 3.1 - search for missing information without detours

If CoverScout cannot find a cover due to missing track information, it can be found by SongGenie with a mouseclick. This way brushing up one's music collection will be a walk in the park. Typos that used to make it impossible to find the right covers are now history.
