The XTension contains 404 proportional borders that scale without distortion to any size are output at high-resolution for professional results. The libraries are resident within QuarkXPress and can be easily accessed from within the document being created, using only a IndeXTension allows users to mark phrases or words in their document content to create an index entry just the way they want it. Whether single entries or in multi-level subcategories, IndeXTension puts users in control. With IndeXTension, users quickly tag the items that they want to index. The tagging of index entries is accomplished by selecting the text to be indexed and pressing a simple key command. Entries can also be tagged with categories. When tagging entries with a category, users simply group index entries. When ready to index their document, users select an empty text box and use the Generate Index command.

Art Gallery XT is an image cataloguing program that creates galleries of images. The galleries are grid based and users have the option to create captions that include the image name, type, size and modification date. Using Art Gallery XT, users simply create a new document, set their gallery preferences and select a folder of graphics. Art Gallery XT automatically creates the grid of graphics, imports the images and adds captions about the images. The captions can optionally contain the path name of the image, the dimensions of the image, the image file type and modification date. There are also four options for scaling the image with Art Gallery XT.

BarCoder XT creates UPC, EAN and ISBN bar codes. The bar codes are saved as EPS files for high-resolution output. With BarCoder XT, users select the symbology, enter the barcode data and BarCoder XT does the calculating and creation. Options include the ability to include supplemental digits, make full or half-height bars, include digits, add colour, create transparent backgrounds and more.
