Berkeley, CA - IT professional book publisher Apress, Inc., announces the inclusion of bestselling Mac and iPhone development book trio Learn C on the Mac, Learn Objective-C on the Mac, and Beginning iPhone Development: Exploring the iPhone SDK to its growing list of books available on Safari Books Online. This initial trio of Apress Mac Development titles offers readers a broad introduction to programming for Mac OS X and the iPhone, and provides a foundation for further forthcoming titles.

Thousands of beginners with no programming experience are learning the fundamentals of Mac OS X programming with Learn C on the Mac by Dave Mark. Considered a classic by an entire generation of Mac programmers, this popular guide has been completely updated for Mac OS X. Topics such as pointers, variables, loops and linked lists provide the grounding for readers to move on with confidence to begin learning Objective-C.

Learn Objective-C on the Mac by Mark Dalrymple and Scott Knaster is the next step in the sequential series of books. Readers are carefully walked through features such as instantiation, protocols for multiple inheritance, dynamic typing, and message forwarding. Anyone comfortable with programming basics but not Objective-C finds this the ideal starting point to for Mac development, especially aspiring iPhone developers looking to take full advantage of Apress's fastest selling title Beginning iPhone Development: Exploring the iPhone SDK.

Learning to program for the Mac and iPhone with Apress on Safari Books Online is easy, instant and offers outstanding value for money.
