

The Pragmatic Studio Announces Next iPhone Development Course

Published on 05/06/09

The Pragmatic Studio today announces their next iPhone development course to be held August 4-7, 2009 in Reston, VA. In this 4-day, hands-on training you'll learn how to build iPhone applications like the pros with expert instruction by two iPhone developers and authors. You'll come away with the experience and confidence to create your own iPhone applications from scratch using the latest features in the iPhone SDK.

Parker, Colorado - The Pragmatic Studio announces their next iPhone development course to be held August 4-7, 2009 in Reston, VA. In this 4-day, hands-on training you'll learn how to build iPhone applications like the pros with expert instruction by two experienced iPhone developers and authors: Bill Dudney and Daniel Steinberg.

- * Get a jump start to build your own iPhone or iPod Touch applications.
- * Learn all the major features of the latest iPhone SDK (version 3.0 if it's released) so you can build mobile applications like the pros.
- * Save time and frustration by focusing exclusively on iPhone development for four days with expert guidance.

Attending this course is a great way to quickly get up to speed on the latest iPhone SDK and get your questions answered. You'll come away with the experience and confidence to create your own iPhone applications from scratch.

Students who have attended this course already have apps in the App Store and have high praise for the course:

- * "It was totally awesome! I learned more in these four days than in six months of muddling around on my own."
- * "Exceptionally awesome. Highly recommended! Great instructors. Bill and Daniel made it worth every dollar."
- * "The trainers go through so many details and show you every aspect of the SDK and over the 4 days you write tons of really cool iPhone apps and you come out of the training as an iPhone developer."
- * "Highly recommended for anyone needing practical, effective guidance on getting into iPhone development."

iPhone is a popular topic, and these Studios tend to sell out fairly quickly. But if you reserve your seat by June 15th, you'll also save $300 on early registration. Check out the outline for a list of topics and the training venue for more details.
