

Karmasation Available on the iPhone App Store

Published on 04/08/13

Karmasation, an App that anonymously tracks and locates karma, is now available for iOS devices and is Free for a limited time. Each time a user posts, a 24-hour poll is created for other users to award good or bad karma. Based on the majority vote, the person who posted earns one good or bad karma point. Voters also earn points for appropriately recognizing karma. In addition, as polls close, karma points are plotted on a map so users can identify areas of good and bad karma.

Wyckoff, New Jersey - GFO Design LLC is proud to announce today that their App, Karmasation, is now available exclusively for iPhone and iPod touch. Karmasation allows users to both post and vote anonymously, earning and awarding karma points along the way.

In Karmasation, each time a user posts, a 24-hour poll is created, giving other users the opportunity to vote and award good or bad karma. Based on the majority vote, the person who posted earns one good or bad karma point. Voters also earn karma points for appropriately recognizing karma based on whether or not their vote agrees with the majority. In addition, as polls close, karma points are plotted on a map so users can identify areas of good and bad karma.

"While users remain anonymous within Karmasation, we recognize the importance of social networks, so users can choose to share posts, results, and their karma profile with Facebook and Twitter," said Gabriel Fernandez-Obregon, creator of Karmasation and founder of GFO Design LLC. "People may simply enjoy the self-validation and awareness they gain from using Karmasation, but we're also hoping that the App inspires some friendly competition to earn the best karma score, thereby promoting positive actions. We truly believe Karmasation can change the world for the better."
