Independent game developer Jack Van der Post is proud to announce WordnRoll 1.5, a refreshing new realtime approach in the word game genre, with no more waiting on turns and featuring interesting single and multiplayer gameplay. WordnRoll is a combination of famous games. Letters fall down and you form words by scrolling the rows left or right and dropping letters. The letters fit exactly together and as word artist players will learn to create better words with the highest score.

Nijmegen, Netherlands - Independent game developer Jack Van der Post wanted a refreshing new realtime approach in the word game genre, with no more waiting on turns and featuring interesting single and multiplayer gameplay. After stubbornly developing and testing for more than a year, WordnRoll became his ultimate word puzzle action game.

WordnRoll learns players to get superfast in composing words by juggling with letters. It is a combination of famous games. Letters fall down and words can be formed by scrolling rows of letters left or right and dropping single letters.

The letters fit exactly together and as word artist players will learn to create better words with the highest score. Are you not in shape or do the letters drop too fast? Beware! It's a definitive GAME OVER as the rows of letters touch the top edge.

Features:

- * Train playfully your vocabulary in single or multiplayer
- * Check your results on the statistics page and see how quickly your game improves
- * Challenge your friends and invite them to a game
