Shanghai, China - Avast! Check yer schedule, mateys, t'is time fer a smashin' activity! Kingdom of Pirates players often wonder what they can do while they are waiting for their rum to regenerate. Toivon's answer? Activities! Kingdom of Pirates is a multiplayer iOS game that offers tons of crazy fun activities for players to partake in when they are out of rum. The biggest of these activities, Open Waters, contains a shipload of sword-swingin' excitement!

In Open Waters, players can pillage each other's bases for supplies like food, gold, and weapon upgrade materials. Battle results are posted on the guild battle log of the plundered pirate, allowing his or her guildies to extract revenge - and boy, do pirates love revenge! Guilds that perform exceptionally well in Open Waters can give daily stipends to their members in the form of gold.

Whenever a player plunders another successfully, he or she will also gain infamy points. Players who acquire lots of infamy will be able to raise their infamy level. Players with high infamy levels get better daily rewards for logging in.

In Open Waters, there are many different Team Mode islands. Team Mode is where multiple players can band together to fight a group of enemies for EXP, gold, food, weapon-upgrade materials, and ocean tears. Team Mode is only open once every 5 hours or so, and during the hour it is open, World Chat is flooded with players eagerly seeking fellow teammates..

Open Waters isn't the only location where players can receive infamy - players can also grab some from the Pirate Tourney, where all players on a server can duel each other to reach the top. Players have a total of 10 Pirate Tourney attempts a day, and each attempt rewards them with food and infamy. Players who perform well in the Pirate Tourney will get a sweet Pirate Tourney reward every day.

Every 5 hours, players can also participate in a server-wide treasure hunt. During the treasure hunt, all hell breaks loose as players scramble for their one free dig. The treasure hunt grid consists of 25 plots of land and each player must select a plot to dig from. Players can dig up relics, rubies, food, buffs, tech points, speed-ups, ocean tears, weapons, EXP cards, rum, war refuse passes, and weapon upgrade materials. Relics can be pocketed instantly for 2,000 gold apiece, but other treasures must be transported carefully. When a treasure is being transported, another player who digs from the same plot of land can seize it. The original player can move the treasure to safety for some rubies.

Players can also get treasure from the treasure ships that appear in Closed Waters every so often. Attacking treasure ships costs no rum, and players can seize pouches full of gold if victorious. Other ships that appear in the game at random include The Drifting Peddlar, which lets players exchange one material for another free of charge, and Maiden's Bounty, where players can trade food for gold and vice versa.

Players can even send an officer off to explore the seas for several hours. The exploring officer will come back with fabulous gifts like tech scrolls and weapon-upgrade materials. With so much to do, it's no wonder that some players are always online! Kingdom of Pirates was released by the Toivon Studio in August of 2013.
