

New Game Badger? Mind Your Move Stimulates Mental Agility Through Fun

Published on 09/24/13

Dutch company RappTech B.V. introduces Badger? 1.0, its new puzzle game for iOS devices. Developed as a playful nod to the growing prevalence of icons and badges in people's daily lives, this multidimensional game builds upon the player's spatial awareness and calculation skills. Make combinations of at least three icons with the same letter, badge number or color by swapping icons in a 4 x 5 grid. The app also includes iOS Game Center multiplayer, where players can compete anywhere in the world.

Cupertino, California - Dutch company RappTech B.V. released a new puzzle game for iOS devices that provides several games of intellectual challenge. Available now for iPhone and iPad in the iTunes App Store, an Android version is expected later this season.

Developed as a playful nod to the growing prevalence of icons and badges in people's daily lives, the multidimensional game builds upon the player's spatial awareness and calculation skills. The goal is to make combinations of at least three icons with the same letter, badge number or color by swapping icons in a 4 x 5 grid. Users must move tiles horizontally or vertically as quickly as they can, to create combinations either in a straight line or diagonally.

Single player mode includes a variety of complexities (10, 20, 30, 40 or 50 moves), each containing a number of levels where users must create combinations to score a sufficient number of points within the allotted moves. Once a level is complete the user moves to the next level within the selected difficulty.

The app also includes iOS Game Center multiplayer, where players can compete anywhere in the world using the Game Center matching system. Global leaderboards also keep track of the overall top players.

RappTech reports that initial users describe the game as "fun," "challenging," and "clever." They also praise the app's colorful design and intuitive interface.
