

RingtoneFeeder offers unique iPhone Alarm Tones

Published on 06/23/09

RingtoneFeeder today released a pack of 25 unique iPhone Alarm Tones which are all written and produced by Geoff Smith. These tones are delivered in one batch immediately and available in other formats to support other mobile phones. The tones are ideal for meeting alerts, waking up or any kind of reminders that use a tone to get your attention. Download all 25 tones in 3 different formats and drag them to the mobile phone directly from their PC/Mac, or install using applications such as iTunes.

Nashville, Tennessee - RingtoneFeeder today released a pack of 25 unique iPhone Alarm Tones which are all written and produced by Geoff Smith designed to sound great on the phone and priced at just $6.49. This is a continuation of the pack concept first released in December 2008 as a Christmas theme - the difference this time is that these tones are delivered in one batch immediately and not as a subscription over time and the tones are also available in other formats (mp3 and wav) to support other mobile phones. The product is one-time payment unlike the monthly or annual subscription services which are recurring.

Customers will download a zip file with 25 tones all in the 3 different formats and can then drag them to the mobile phone directly from their PC/Mac or install it using applications such as iTunes. The tones are ideal for meeting alerts, waking up or any kind of reminders that use a tone to get your attention.

"We are really excited to release this new product which also offers support for other mobile phones which has been one of the most asked for "features" since we launched RingtoneFeeder a year ago, however, the subscription model remains our core business" said Geoff Smith, Partner and Producer at RingtoneFeeder.

RingtoneFeeder is an innovative approach to ringtones offering a subscription model which automatically installs new original ringtones on the iPhone via iTunes every week. The earlier a subscription to the service is made the bigger collection the subscriber will have. When a ringtone has been released it will not appear in the weekly updates ever again. The 10 latest ringtones are delivered when subscribing and then an additional two new ringtones every week.

RingtoneFeeder Plus provides access to the entire archive of ringtones produced by RingtoneFeeder in two separate feeds - one for vocal and one for instrumental iPhone ringtones from just $9.98 USD (an active annual subscription is required) or $29.95 for an annual subscription with archive access.

There is a free demo feed available so the service can be tried out with no obligations. The free feed contains sample ringtones as well as an introduction video and a PDF guide to managing ringtones via iTunes.

Geoff Smith has been producing and playing music most of his life and is mostly known online from his jingles heard on Adam Curry's Daily Source Code Podcast, GeekBrief, Tips from The Top Floor, ScreenCasts Online, the successful iYule project and recently the theme song for TWiT Live. Geoff began composing jingles and theme songs for podcasters back in 2005 and has literally written hundreds.
