Bradford, Canada - Cerebral Gardens has launched Watchdog for Xcode(R), a simple to use developer utility that automatically cleans up stale cache files that prevent developers from getting a good build.

"I built Watchdog for personal use," said Dave Wood, the Founder and Lead Developer at Cerebral Gardens. "I'm always working with other developers in Xcode. Almost everyday, one of us would come across a strange problem that was eventually solved by clearing Xcode's cache. Watchdog was created to do that automatically and prevent those costly time delays."

Watchdog runs in the background, monitoring Xcode and keeping its cache files under control. Developers can trigger a manual clean at any time or customize automatic cleans using four configurable settings:

1. Whenever Xcode closes
2. On clean builds
3. At a specific time each day
4. When the cache files exceed a specified size

Don't waste any more time. If you're a developer using Xcode, you need Watchdog.
