Hong Kong, China - Applusoft Limited, an innovative mobile applications developer, is excited to announce the launch of the recent release of Mandarin Quest 1.0 onto the App Store. Compatible with iPhone, iPad, and iPod touch devices. Mandarin Quest is an extremely addictive yet immensely powerful learning game that seamlessly blends together Chinese language features and innovative RPG style together with an epic action to bring mobile gamers some of the most unique quest challenges available on iOS. The game features stunning original design, turning game action into a mentally engaging interactive learning experience.

As accessible as it is addicting, Mandarin Quest throws players into the shoes of Hero, who has to save people of Silent Village from the devil. To better control the villagers, the devil took away their Chinese language skill by using magic and now the hero must conquer the devil and restore the language skill of the villagers. That said, the essence of the game is simple enough, players have to give right answers and name Chinese numbers, animals and much more. The further players get - the more different tactic books he collects and the sooner he can conquer the devil. Game also offers Training mode where users can learn how to spell and pronounce numbers, names of the animals and other useful info.

Mandarin Quest by Applusoft Limited also offers nine Chinese language barriers in the mountains which are specially designed to test players understanding of words they have reviewed in the Training mode. The app features clear Status system that tracks the player's performance throughout the game. Though the app has an educational focus - and no shortage of educational tools on hand - its emphasis on vibrant graphics and dynamic game action that turns this app into a pleasurable game experience rather than a dry educational one. Indeed, this attention to the user experience shines through, positioning Mandarin Quest as one of the premiere Chinese learning and vocabulary expanding education apps available for iOS.
