This award-winning title forms a library of training for Adobe products from Class on Demand.

Hoffman Estates, IL - Class on Demand, a provider of professional educational products for creative markets, today announced they have won the coveted DV Award of Excellence for their training title: "Basic Training for Adobe(R) CS4 Production Premium." This is the first time that a Class on Demand title has been recognized by DV Magazine for the prestigious award.

"DV Magazine reinforces its tremendous reputation through the consistent provision of impartial and resourceful product reviews," said Paul Holtz, CEO and founder, Class on Demand. "The feedback provided by industry experts among the likes of J.R. Bookwalter continually aids in the assessment and improvement of our current training programs and the development of our future curriculum. We are honored to receive such a valuable accolade from DV Magazine."

In the July 2009 DV publication, industry veteran J.R. Bookwalter gave the training a solid 4.5 out of 5 DV diamonds; meeting the award criteria. Bookwalter comments: "'Basic Training for Adobe CS4 Production Premium' is a great way to maximize your new investment while keeping the learning curve to a minimum. It's so good at what it does; Adobe should consider bundling future volumes with their Creative Suites..."

This award-winning title forms a library of training for Adobe products from Class on Demand.
