

ORANGE time management - more than just another to-do app

Published on 01/22/14

rapidrabbit today announces ORANGE time management for iOS, which is based on the Pomodoro technique. A user divides his tasks into work units, so the usual workflow stays the same, but becomes more structured. Thanks to this app you can work efficiently on your tasks. In this way you will get your things done in favor of more leisure time. The app offers statistics, which show how many units you've completed during a day, how long it took to accomplish a unit and to finish a whole task.

Greifswald, Germany - At the beginning of a new year everybody is making plans and good resolutions just to suspend them later. Maybe it's time to tackle this problem. That's why rapidrabbit developed ORANGE time management - a productivity app, which will help you to work efficiently on your tasks, so you get more free time.

Write down your tasks in the app, set their order and let's go! You have 25 minutes to work highly concentrated and get a 5 minutes break afterwards. After four of these units you get a longer pause to relax. You can approve your progress by getting a look at already accomplished tasks in the archive or/and the statistics. The biggest advantage is, however, that you can set your own units and break duration, so it fits your own workflow.

Here is a full list of the features of ORANGE time management:

- * Archive, which gives you an overview of already accomplished tasks
- * Adjustable timer settings to fit your own workflow
- * Statistics, which show how many units you've completed during a day, how long it took to accomplish a unit and to finish a whole task
