Edibles allows you to track either calories, carbs, or virtually any single user-configurable item. It comes with everything you need to achieve a healthy lifestyle. Gilbert, Arizona - Random Ideas, LLC, has announced the release of version 2.4 of its popular food journaling application Edibles for the Apple iPhone and iPod Touch. Edibles Version 2.4 is available for download for just $4.99 from Apple's App Store and can be purchased through iTunes, or through the App Store directly on the device itself. Edibles is available in all the countries that the App Store services.

Edibles is the most reliable and versatile diet journal available for iPhone and iPod Touch. It allows you to track either calories, carbs, or virtually any single user-configurable item, and comes with everything you need to achieve a healthy lifestyle.

Edibles also includes weight journaling and support for the Edibles Online web portal which provides the ability to do over-the-air backups and restores, share food lists and journals, and enables users to edit their foods using their PC and web browser rather than having to type all their data in manually on the iPhone itself. Membership in Edibles Online is free.

With version 2.4, Edibles has added exercise journaling to it's already substantial toolbox of diet journal capabilities, and enhances compatibility with iPhone OS 3.0.

Jiva DeVoe, the Company's founder and Chief Software Craftsman said "While Edibles already had the ability to do simple exercise journaling before, with this new version, we've added the ability to do much more detailed logging of your exercise using the same super-efficient interface Edibles users previously used for logging their food intake. This was our #1 requested feature from our users, and we're absolutely thrilled to be bringing this capability to them."
