Published on 02/06/14

UK based app developer, Rory Buckley today introduces Rain Sleep Sounds 1.0, his new fitness app developed for iPhone, iPad and iPad touch devices. Following on from his successful Sleep Sounds app, Rain Sleep Sounds focuses on rain relaxation and sound intensity with gentle, moderate and heavy rain noise. The app also comes with a selection of ambient nature sounds & music that can be mixed together with the rain sounds, allowing the user to create their own ambient sound experiences.

Devon, United Kingdom - App developer Rory Buckley is pleased to announce the recent release of Rain Sleep Sounds (Rain Noise for Relaxation) for iOS devices. The app includes a variety of different rain sounds and focuses on different rain noise intensity (gentle, moderate & heavy). The app also includes a selection of relaxing nature sounds and ambient music, these can either be listened to individually or mixed together with the chosen rain sound, allowing the user to create their own relaxing sound experience.

Being an app that promotes relaxation & sleep, an obvious and useful addition of a sleep timer has been built in to the app. This comes with many preset times that the user can simply touch to activate. Once the timer fires, all playing audio will stop to enable the device to enter into power-save mode. To give the user freedom while the sounds are playing, the app allows multi-tasking, allowing the user to check email, browse Safari & use other apps etc.

Rain noise is well known as a popular sound choice for relaxation & Rory Buckley wanted to express his particular interest in this. His aim has been to create a rain app that suits every listeners needs and with such a wide variety in the rain intensity options, plus the added personalisation abilities with the extra sounds for mixing, he feels very strongly that the Rain Sleep Sounds app takes the rain relaxation experience to a whole new level.
