"I came up with the idea during I renovated my large kitchen. It was very hard and at the end I was annoyed because I didn't took any picture of the progress." said Marcus Rumböhm, Indie developer and founder of MobileAppVault. "I decided to develop an app which remind me to take a picture in a specific repeat interval. I guess there are a lot of similar apps but I wanted an app which is easy to use like the iOS timer app and where I can create more than one reminder for different situations. Picr was born in my head."

Customers Say:

"I just started using this but I think it might exactly the replacement app I've been looking for. All the features I'm used to having plus many more that make it much more useful than anything else I've used. Have I mentioned that it works?" - Rob_from_Cali

As well as being ideal for you to document your own progress it will be also a nice app for parents who want to see how their kids grow up. "Capturing life's precious moments"
