Minsk, Belarus - Ultralab today is proud to announce the official release and immediate availability of Recents 1.0 for iPhone, an app that aggregates news from all social networks into a single rich feed. No more tearing between dozens of apps and tabs, with Recents users have everything in one place, neatly displayed! Different content formats are supported, including text articles, photos, and videos. The full story can be opened right inside the app, allowing users to go deep into detail when they see something interesting. There no need to leave the app to show appreciation, too, as all "likes" are automatically transferred from Recents to the corresponding social network.

Features:

- * Only the most recent updates from all social networks
- * Support of the 4 major networks: Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, Tumblr

"Recents is one of our most cherished projects and the one we believe has great potential," says Eugene Valuev, founder of Ultralab. This is the first version of Recents, and we have huge plans regarding the upcoming updates, such as easy content categorization, smart discovery mechanisms, etc. We hope users will enjoy using Recents, which will help us put all those plans into action."
