

Mac Users - Meet Your Web Hosting Service

Published on 07/21/09

MacHighway today announced its Easy hosting package for do-it-yourself Web site owners and small businesses. MacHighway's Easy hosting package comes with unmatched service and support, 10 gigabytes of disk space, 100 gigabytes monthly bandwidth and 5 domain email accounts as well as free registration for one domain for the first year. MacHighway can provide the infrastructure needed to support its customers while taking a carbon-neutral approach to its business.

Denver, Colorado - MacHighway, a Web hosting company designed by Mac users for Mac users, today announced its Easy hosting package for do-it-yourself Web site owners and small businesses. MacHighway's Easy Hosting Package is ideally suited for customers using today's WYSIWYG (what you see is what you get) Web site builder software such as iWeb, Sandvox and RapidWeaver, tools that are only available to Mac users. The Easy Package includes a large variety of hosting features, your own domain name and @yourdomain email accounts, and even makes it possible for customers to sync Mail, iCal, and addresses without using MobileMe.

"MacHighway has provided hosting services and support for Mac users longer than Apple itself. We don't outsource our support or force customers to find answers in user forums," said Chris Graves, president of MacHighway. "Understanding the needs and applications of Mac users is what sets us apart from all hosting companies today and enables our company to deliver hosting packages specific to the Mac audience."

As a company that is 100 percent wind-powered, MacHighway can provide the infrastructure needed to support its customers while taking a carbon-neutral approach to its business. And unlike alternative hosting solutions that charge close to $100 per year for lackluster service, MacHighway customers have access to phone support with a team skilled not only in answering hosting questions - all are Mac experts and enthusiasts, who have helped to establish MacHighway as the premier support team for Mac users.

MacHighway's hosting packages complement the experience found with Mac-focused web site development tools such as Sandvox. The founder of Karelia Software and developer of Sandvox added, "Our Sandvox web site development application was designed specifically for Mac users who want a professional web site that is easy to build and maintain. Coupled with the Easy package from MacHighway, we know for certain that our customers who want a seamless, Mac end-to-end web site and hosting experience will get the necessary personal support from experts who truly understand Mac user needs," said Dan Wood, founder of Karelia Software.

MacHighway's Easy hosting package comes with unmatched service and support, 10 gigabytes of disk space, 100 gigabytes monthly bandwidth and 5 domain email accounts for $39.95 (USD) per year as well as free registration for one domain for the first year.
