

New App Offers Unique 'Flappy' Game Play on Apple Devices

Published on 04/20/14

MZ Apps announces Flappy X, a game based on Flappy Bird for iOS. The game allows users to use a simple tapping motion to help a tiny bird character fly and bounce between pipes in an eight-bit obstacle course. Every level is unique, with different obstacles and pipes arranged in different ways. Players who guide their bird successfully through the most pipes have bragging rights among their friends. Flappy X is free to download in the Apple iTunes Store.

Chicago, Illinois - A new game for mobile devices has people of all ages and from all walks of life 'hooked'. "Flappy X" is a game based on Flappy Bird, the viral hit that was subsequently taken down by the developer Dong Nguyen. It is now available for iOS devices at the iTunes store.

Created by MZ Apps, Flappy X allows users to use a simple tapping motion on the screen to help a tiny bird character fly and bounce between pipes in an eight-bit obstacle course where players can try to reach the highest levels possible. Every level is unique, with different obstacles and pipes arranged in different ways so that a player never experiences the same level twice. Anybody can pick up and play the game with this free and easy-to-use interface. Players who guide their bird successfully through the most pipes have bragging rights among their friends.

"Our goal was to create a game that encapsulates all the addictive elements of the original Flappy Bird game while also injecting something new," the MZ Apps spokesperson said. "Our version of the famous Flappy concept is simple, clean and fun. Everyone who tries it quickly becomes addicted!"

Device Requirements:

- * iPhone, iPad, and iPod touch
- * Requires iOS 5.0 or later
- * 6.5 MB

Pricing and Availability:

Flappy X: Tiny Snappy Wings 2.0 is free and available worldwide exclusively through the App Store in the Games category. Those who want to remove the ads on the screen have the option to pay for a premium version of the game.
