

Ofijo releases Detector XT 1.0 - New iPhone Prank App

Published on 08/09/09

Polish startup company Ofijo has released Detector XT 1.0, a new prank application for iPhone and iPod Touch. With the use of iPhone's accelerometer, eye-catching design and animations that simulate measurements, Detector XT lets you prank your friends in new, imaginative ways. Have you ever wondered if your friend is a zombie? Do you have any metal implants in your brain? With Detector XT you can now know the answer right away.

Warsaw, Poland - Detector XT, a new prank application developed by a Polish startup company Ofijo has been released on iTunes. With the use of iPhone's accelerometer, eye-catching design and animations that simulate measurements it lets its users prank their friends in a new, imaginative way.

"Have you ever wondered if your friend is a zombie?"

"Do you have any metal implants in your brain?"

"Is the food you just ordered radioactive? Or maybe it has been poisoned?"

"Is there a ghost in that closet?"

You probably asked yourself one of those questions at least once today. With 'Detector XT' you can now know the answer right away. Just point your iPhone or iPod Touch at someone, tilt it a little to start the measurements and perform the test. You can manipulate the output of the test by tilting your device. Your test subject most probably won't notice this little trick, believing its 'magical' testing capabilities.

Detector XT is a small prank application that lets you lead your friends into believing almost anything you want. With the smart use of the iPhone's accelerometer you can tweak the results of any test to your liking.

Detector XT features 8 fun modes:

- * Metal detector
- * Lie detector
- * Poison check
- * Radiation
- * Love meter
- * IQ scan
- * Ghost detector
- * Zombie test

Minimum Requirements:

iPhone or iPod Touch 2.1 or later

Pricing and Availability:

Detector XT 1.0 is $0.99 (USD) and available exclusively through Apple's App Store.
