

Wordlines - an innovative word game for iPad - in the App Store

Published on 08/19/14

Are you a word and language lover looking for something fresh in the universe of word games? Independent developer, Vitaliy Chepkov introduces Wordlines, an innovative word game for iPad; simple, yet addictive both for native speakers and English language learners striving to expand their active vocabulary in an enjoyable way. Just align letters scattered on the board to make a new word and clear it from the game field. Wordlines has more than 30 levels & thousands of English nouns.

Saint-Petersburg, Russian Federation - Vitaliy Chepkov, independent mobile app developer, has announced that Wordlines, a new word building game for iPad, is available in the AppStore. Fed up with boring word searches and Scrabble? Meet Wordlines, a fresh mix of classic Lines board arcade and word games. Unlike traditional word search and Scrabble-like games, Wordlines for iPad invites you to build the words yourself by moving letters across the game field. Various tasks and missions won't leave you bored. Think of longer words, create clever combos, earn extra points and don't let those letters to seize the game field.

Wordlines is as simple as everything of genius. Just align letters scattered on the board to make a new word and clear it from the game field. Sounds easy, but it can be tricky, with various mission tasks that challenge players to create longer words or combos or to respect tight move time limits. Be strategic; think several moves ahead. It's like chess, only with letters on the board!

"Working on the game, we kept in mind our key goals to make it both captivating and useful," said Vitaliy Chepkov, the creator of the Wordlines for iPad. "It is good to have something enjoyable to pass time while waiting in the queue or on your way home, but it is even better to combine fun with benefits. Hence Wordlines for iPad is a game with elements of vocabulary and spelling training."
