Edinburgh, United Kingdom - Scotland based Studio Plinth today is proud to launch Clear the Grid, a universal game for iOS. Aimed at casual gamers of all ages Clear the Grid is that most unusual of things a game of skill. It's free to download which includes the first 10 levels there is then an In App Purchase of $1.99 USD (launch sale price $0.99 USD) to unlock all 100 levels forever. All future updates will be free.

Clear the Grid has one goal which is to clear the grid. Slide the tiles on the perpetually scrolling grid to match 3 or more tiles, clear all the tiles to win. Don't leave less than 3 tiles of any colour or it is game over. Easy to learn but hard to master, thinking ahead is essential. This is a game of skill, just you against the grid.

Each level is unique, a different shape, a different size. As the levels progress ever more challenging grids are presented with new tiles Splits and Bullseyes being introduced to keep you on your toes.

Studio Plinth was co-founded by Sanya Sever and Jay Forster-Davies in 2012. They are based in Edinburgh and this is their second app of many (they hope) as they desperately need a yacht or at least a 10 foot dingy in a sunnier part of the world. The risk of rickets with the miserable Scottish weather is just too great. Copyright (C) 2015 Studio Plinth. All Rights Reserved.
