Apple Watch represents a new chapter in the way people relate to technology. It's a device that enables you to communicate in entirely new ways, offers a complete picture of your fitness and health, plays music, installs apps and is a beautiful, precise timepiece. Fitting all this new technology into such a small device meant rethinking how software and hardware interact, and introduced a new method of scrolling through content: the Digital Crown. New user interface interactions have also been introduced, including Force Touch and haptic feedback.
