Published on 10/02/09

baKno today announces Island Racer, their new online racing game. Island Racer features innovative, randomly generated landscapes and tracks, and endless racing options for solo or competitive play. Players select from different cars and colors to race in head-to-head competition. Gamers will find Island Racer easy to play and full of exhilarating moments. The game also features original music and voice-overs created by Edward Melendez.

Key Biscayne, Florida - baKno, a game development studio offering fun and challenging online games for all ages, today launched its newest original game, Island Racer. Island Racer is a casual racing game that can be played solo, against the computer, or online against another player. The innovative design features randomly generated landscapes and tracks for on-road and off-road racing. Players select from different cars and colors to race in head-to-head competition.

The unique ability to generate new original landscapes and tracks, along with on-road and off-road options, offers infinite Island Racer track combinations for a new experience with every race. Slamming the opponent is allowed when playing against the computer or online against another player. Gamers will find Island Racer easy to play and full of exhilarating moments. The game also features original music and voice-overs created by Edward Melendez.
