This innovative app has been hailed as the best Notification Center widget for Twitter.

London, United Kingdom - iPhone users who are fed up with having to quit an app, unlock their device, or even consider jailbreaking their device simply to stay in touch with the Twitterverse, can now solve their problem by downloading NC - Twitter Widget for Notification Center (a.k.a. "NC") by Apps Genie Limited.

Hailed by iGeeksblog as "the best Notification Center widget for Twitter", NC lets users see their last 5 tweets via the Today tab of the Notification Center, or on the lock screen (users can change tweets to mentions via the app's settings). And since NC automatically refreshes every time the Notification Center opens, users always know that they're getting the latest information from their Twitter account.

Furthermore, from within any app users can tap a Tweet to mark it as a favorite, retweet it, or open it in their Twitter account. If they don't have the official Twitter app installed, users can have NC launch their Tweetbot or Twitterrific account instead.

In featuring NC as a "can't-miss" app, Mashable noted: "NC is a clever app that takes advantage of iOS 8's notification center widgets in a unique way. This app adds a quick preview of the most recent tweets from your timeline to your notifications menu". And BGR.com concluded that "NC is a cool iPhone app which found a great new use for widgets that you've never seen before".

Other NC special features include:

- * The option to clear the NC widget cache in a single tap
- * A sleek, clutter-free interface with crisp, easy-to-read fonts
- * Landscape support for all devices

"With NC, users don't have to close an app or unlock their device to check out the latest news, facts, quotes, mentions, and everything else on Twitter. It's all right there on their Today tab or the lock screen," commented Heidi Morsi of Apps Genie Limited.
