

TextExpander touch Integrated In Tweetie 2 for iPhone

Published on 10/12/09

The iPhone version of SmileOnMyMac's customizable typing shortcut tool TextExpander touch, is now integrated in Tweetie 2 for the iPhone from Atebits Software. Tweetie 2 users will be able to access their TextExpander snippets while composing tweets in the app, rather than first composing their tweets in TextExpander touch. To celebrate the integration, TextExpander touch is on sale until Friday, October 16.

San Francisco, CA - TextExpander touch, the iPhone version of SmileOnMyMac's customizable typing shortcut tool, is now integrated in Tweetie 2 for the iPhone from Atebits Software. Tweetie 2 users will be able to access their TextExpander snippets while composing tweets in the app, rather than first composing their tweets in TextExpander touch.

To celebrate the integration of TextExpander in Tweetie 2, SmileOnMyMac has a special sale on TextExpander touch. Until October 16, TextExpander touch is only $2.99, a 40% discount off the regular price of $4.99.

TextExpander touch and Tweetie 2 both require an iPhone or iPod touch running iPhone OS 3.0 or later. The TextExpander touch Software Development Kit (SDK), which allows iPhone developers to integrate TextExpander functionality into their applications, consists of a free TextExpander engine library and sample code.

TextExpander touch features:

- * Compose notes quickly and easily that contain frequently-used text, addresses, phone numbers, email signatures, URLs, etc.
- * Automatically insert your notes into Mail and Twitter clients, or copy-and-paste into other apps on your iPhone
- * Add TextExpander snippets from your Mac via your local network
- * Save composed notes in an archive for reuse
- * Use multiple snippet groups
- * Add Predefined Groups such as accented words, symbols, HTML, and CSS
