Goldlit Direction LTD today announces Home On App 1.5, an update to their popular business app developed for iOS and Android devices. Home On App offers a better solution to help seekers buy or let the home they need, and connect directly with property owners who are looking for the perfect match. Home On App cuts out the middleman, and streamlines the housing search process without the time, expense or inconvenience. Version 1.5 now integrates tracking events and enhanced functionality.

London, United Kingdom - Londoners know that in the United Kingdom, quality housing is often pricey enough without having to pay expensive fees to find a home through a broker site. Now, the Home On App offers a better solution to help seekers buy or let the home they need, and connect directly with property owners who are looking for the perfect place for their listings - and the perfect match.

It's simple: Just list the properties you have available, and interested parties can contact you directly via text message or phone call. Home On App cuts out the middleman, and streamlines the housing search process without the time, expense or inconvenience. The app also lists providers of housing-related services and their profiles, so information about services connected to your search is at your fingertips.

"There's no reason to go through a cumbersome and expensive process on an agent or broker website," said Yu Qin, Director for the Home On App. "The mobile app delivers listings with detailed information and images, with easy-to-use filters to help sort by geographic location or the features you most want."

Home On App will help to recommend services as well as properties, with a comprehensive and easy-to-navigate directory of electricians, moves and other housing-related businesses. With a simple tap, a Home On App user can compare services and experience, pay rates per hour and all contact information. For complete details, see the Home On App in iTunes, where it is available in English, or at the GooglePlay store. The basic app is easy to install and free.
