Denver, Colorado - MacMost has announced a new iPhone Case Finder section. Finding the right case for your iPhone can be tricky. There are hundreds of cases currently available, of all different styles, colors and types. Many iPhone users simply settle for one they see in a store without looking for the best one for them. The new iPhone Case Finder section of the MacMost Web site allows users to quickly search through more than 700 iPhone and iPod Touch cases. They can narrow the field by specifying styles, colors and types.

"The problem that iPhone users face is that there are too many cases out there," said Gary Rosenzweig, producer of MacMost. "Looking through a large online retailer can take hours, and it is hard to pick one out."

The iPhone Case Finder lets you pick a color, style, manufacturer and iPhone or iPod Touch model. This can quickly narrow the search down from hundreds to only a few. Then you can roll over each choice to view an image and more information. The site only shows cases that are currently in stock and can be shipped quickly, ruling out hundreds of cases that clog up online sites even though they aren't really available.

"Another problem people face is the poor selection in stores," said Rosenzweig. "Even the Apple Store can only stock a few dozen cases, which is less than 10% of what's really out there. There are some really great designs and some high-quality cases that you may never even see if you just look in stores,"
